

NAPLES, FL • ATLANTA, GA • QUEENS, NY • SEASIDE, CA

On December 26, 2003, Georgetown flew to Las Vegas, Nevada, where they went 4-0, defeating Centennial, the #9 team in the nation. Georgetown is 9-0 in Vegas in two trips.

On December 28, 2004, Georgetown was defeated by Christ the King in Queens, New York, the #1 team in the nation, as the Lady Eagles had the opportunity to play with the 30-second clock. They rode the subway, visited Ground Zero, toured Statton Island, and viewed the Statue of Liberty, marveled at the Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall, ate at Carnegie Deli, and were awed by the sight of the New York skyline and the Empire State Building.

Diamond State Classic in Delaware was the Christmas 2005 destination where Georgetown went 3-1. In Philly, they went to the Rocky steps, Geno's for cheese steaks, and Independence Hall. In DC, they saw all the monuments, the Holocaust Museum, the White House, the Capitol, Arlington National Cemetery, and Georgetown University.

During Christmas 2006, Georgetown traveled by charter bus to Atlanta, Georgia, where they competed in the Deep South Classic. The team went 2-2 against some of the toughest competition in the nation while taking time to eat at the famous Varsity, visit Stone Mountain, and enjoy the Georgia Aquarium.

Christmas 2007 was spent in Seaside, California, at the Sweet Sixteen Tournament, where Georgetown went 4-0. They defeated the hometown Seaside Lady Spartans, 64-27, in the finals. In San Francisco, the team toured Alcatraz, the Golden Gate Bridge, Chinatown, Lombardi Street, and Fisherman's Wharf.

The Christmas tournament of choice was held in Owensboro, Kentucky, where Georgetown went 3-1, losing in the finals to Henderson County, Kentucky. In Nashville, Tennessee, the team visited the Country Music Hall of Fame, President Andrew Jackson's home, The Hermitage, and ICE at the Grand Ol' Opry Resort.

OAKLAND, CA • VIRGINIA BEACH, VA • GILETTE, WY • ADA, OK

Christmas in 2009 was spent in Phoenix, Arizona, at the Nike Tournament of Champs, where Georgetown defeated Chandler, Arizona, on the buzzer. The team traveled the Apache Trail, experiencing Camelback Mountain and an old ghost town in addition to attending an Arizona State women's basketball game.

Georgetown flew to Oakland, California, after Christmas in 2010, where the team placed fourth out of 96 teams in the West Coast Jamboree, losing to nationally ranked Berkeley and Long Beach Poly. While in San Francisco, the team visited Muir Woods, Golden Gate Bridge, Chinatown, and Fisherman's Wharf.

Georgetown headed east to Virginia Beach, Virginia, and the Boo Williams Holiday Classic in December 2011, where the team went 2-1, snapping a 17-game winning streak. The team explored a lighthouse, rode the oldest wooden carousel in the country, visited Jamestown, ate rare prime rib at Colonial Williamsburg, toured ChristmasTown at Busch Gardens, and experienced GeoCashing, where they found the oldest church in America as well as other historic treasures.

WILMINGTON, DE • PHOENIX, AZ • SAN FRANCISCO, CA

The Georgetown Lady Eagles traversed snow and ice to drive to Ada, Oklahoma, for the Bertha Teague Mid-American Classic in December 2012, producing a record of 2-1 before losing to Sulphur, Oklahoma, in the finals. Both Georgetown and Sulphur would go on to win their respective state titles. The team was shown great hospitality and played before 3,500 rabid basketball fans every night. In addition, Georgetown had time to Geo-Cash and visit Byng, the home of Mrs. Teague. In Oklahoma City, they went to the Western Heritage Cowboy Museum and the Murray Federal Museum and Memorial as well as staying in Bricktown.

The Lady Eagles left on December 26, 2014, and flew to the Centennial Holiday Classic in Las Vegas, Nevada, where they went 3-2, losing to the #2 team in California, Bonita HS and #3 team in Nevada, Liberty HS. Georgetown defeated the #4 team in Arizona, Highlands HS. The team played before many fans from Sun City Georgetown and Southwestern Lady Pirates Basketball team. For more fun, the team road the roller-coasters at New York New York and the Stratosphere, watched the water show at the Bellagio, the volcano eruption at the Mirage, and the laser show at the Freemont as well as seeing the Blue Man Group show and touring Hoover Dam and Lake Mead.

OWNESBORO, KY • LAS VEGAS, NV • FORT MYERS, FL

The Eagles boarded a charter bus and traveled to Mobile, Alabama, where they stopped for a shoot-around on the eve of December 27, 2014. The next morning the team had a captain-led devotional before travelling to Tampa, Florida, where the team went to Busch Gardens. Next were the beautiful beaches at Ft. Myers, Florida, and the Queen of Palms Classic where the team defeated Dwyer, Florida, 67-58, before losing to the two-time state champion and host team Dunbar, Florida, 48-74. Georgetown won third via a win over Gainesville, Florida, 62-51. In addition, the girls battled off the flu and did some world-class shopping.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK

Georgetown chartered a bus and headed for Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, on December 27, 2015. They arrived in time to eat at Fuzzy's Taco and attend the OKC Thunder game. Along the way, they encountered snow and ice that forced them to cancel their trip to the Murray Federal Memorial and Museum. Instead they left early on December 28 for Ada, Oklahoma, and the Bertha Teague Mid-American Classic. There, they weathered cold temperatures and played basketball before a packed house at East Central University. The Lady Eagles went 1-2, losing to Alva, Oklahoma, 30-42; defeating host Ada, Oklahoma, 45-38; and losing to Plainview, Oklahoma, 51-60. Georgetown returned to district play "a more experienced team," losing only to Vista Ridge.

